Community Lends Campbelltown Hospital a green hand

Campbelltown Hospital has received generous community support from local businesses and construction company Lend Lease, who have provided welcome maintenance and landscaping to its gardens.

The working party of more than a dozen volunteers was made up of Lend Lease staff who are working on the $134 million redevelopment of Campbelltown Hospital.

The team was generously supported by Campbelltown Council who supplied the mulch; Hargraves Landscapes who supplied plants and tools; and professional landscapers who assisted Bingo Group – providing a green waste bin to recycle the matter removed from the garden.

Campbelltown and Camden Hospitals General Manager, Lynne Bickerstaff said the Hospital was very grateful for the helping hands.

“The staff, patients and community at Campbelltown Hospital are really excited about the unveiling of one refurbished section after another of the new Hospital,” she said.

“I’d like to thank those who worked all day to help make our Hospital a more welcoming place.”

Lend Lease Community Day Project Leader, Colin MacDonald, said staff were pleased to help.

“Lend Lease hosted its 19th annual Community Day on Thursday 18th September, a community initiative designed to encourage all employees around the world to give something back to local communities where they live and work,” he said.

“Community Day is about forging strong community partnerships, applying Lend Lease manpower and skills where they are most needed and supporting communities where we have operations.

“We are proud to have worked hand in hand with the Campbelltown community and South Western Sydney Local Health District to deliver a new garden and landscaping at Campbelltown Hospital.”
