District launches Cultural Competency Training for all staff

The South Western Sydney Local Health District is launching Cultural Competency Training for all staff to increase their capacity to work effectively with culturally and linguistically diverse communities.

The launch is being held as a key activity of the 2018 Multicultural Health Week, which has the theme of health literacy.

The launch event will include guest speakers and cultural performances, reflecting the District’s cultural diversity.

More than 40 per cent of people in south western Sydney were born overseas and the region is home to the largest refugee population in the state.

Launch event details

When: Thursday 6 September, 9-10am
Where: The Whitlam Joint Replacement Centre, Fairfield Hospital, corner of Polding St and Prairievale Rd.

If media would like to attend the launch event please contact the Media Unit on 8738 6848 or swslhd-media@health.nsw.gov.au.
